1 Interpretation Centre of Cala Lledó

Es Lledó gives its name to the dock from where watchmen, lighthouse keepers and navigators berthed, an old necropolis, and also the houses of a small livestock farm, currently used to welcome and inform park visitors.

2 S'Abeurador

At the bottom of a sloping stone wall, there is a traditional architectural structure used to retain the water that fell and ran over the slope.

3 Forn de Calç

Entering through a valley and very thick scrubland, there are remains of an old architecture used to cook calcareous stone to obtain lime; a key material in the construction of the houses of Lladó.

4 Penyes Roges

A clear example of a sunny rock on the southern slope, equipped with a stone wall from where you can see the flight of the Booted eagle.

5 Torrent de ses Fontanelles

A torrent, the flow of which was collected by a small dam.

6 Llebeig Tower

The first traces of a surveillance and defence system (prior to the lighthouses) that, with a south-facing cannon, defended es Freu and the Andratx coast from the intrusion of pirates and corsairs.

7 Llebeig Lighthouse

Standing guard at 121 vertical metres from the sea, the well-lit tower and its attached constructions transport you back to the days of the former lighthouse keepers. You can even see dolphins from this sublime perspective of the Mediterranean.
